A LETTER received in Cayon from one of the officers accompanying the Czar's party on his tour through India states, that up to the time of writing, His Imperial Highness had greatly enjoyed his trip to India. He was specially struck with Bombay, and liked the country very much.

Correspondence with Holt's and the Hamburg-Dampf-Bläder steamers has, it is said, led the Marquesas Maritimes Company to increase their passenger service between Batavia and Singapore. Their steamer the Cedars, which runs between Batavia and Sumarang, is said to be doing an increasing business, owing to the voyage being direct without calling at intermediate ports.

An amusing incident in connection with the Czar's visit to Bombay is recorded. During the week the police exercised extraordinary, though justifiable, vigilance, as numbers of suspicious characters, some of them Russian, had been reported to be about. When His Imperial Highness was about to start from the Bunder, a foreigner attempted to push his way past the police toward the carriage containing the Czar with the Governor. He was told to stand back but insisted on going forward, and became more and more excited on finding himself restrained. The police unable to understand the language in which he spoke, detained him and sent for Mr Newnham. It then transpired that he was the Czar's courier, who had arrived in Bombay by the mail, bearing letters for His Imperial Highness, and the explanations of his impetuosity were that he wished to deliver the letters without delay. In the meantime the Czar, who had expected the courier to hand him his letters, was concerned at their non-arrival. Explanations and apologies followed. Mr Newnham's intervention, and the letters were subsequently recovered from the police who had taken charge of them.
